

The Acadians are descendants of French colonists who settled 400 years ago in what is now the Atlantic region. Quebecers live in Quebec. Most are French-speaking descendants of French settlers from the 17th and 18th centuries who brought many French to Quebec. Quebecers have a unique identity, culture and language. In 2006, the Canadian parliament recognized the Quebecois form a nation within a united Canada. One million English-speaking residents are the first most English Canadians are descendants of English, Welsh, Scottish and Irish people. These include settlers, soldiers and migrants who came to

The Acadians are descendants of French colonists who settled 400 years ago in what is now the Atlantic region. Quebecers live in Quebec. Most are French-speaking descendants of French settlers from the 17th and 18th centuries who brought many French to Quebec. Quebecers have a unique identity, culture and language. In 2006, the Canadian Parliament recognized the Quebecois form a nation within a united Canada. One million English-speaking British settlers. Most English Canadians are descendants of English, Welsh, Scottish and Irish people. These include settlers, soldiers and migrants who came to Canada from the 17th to the 20th century. Generations of these pioneers helped bring British political customs and